WELCOME TO FUTURE MATERIALS 2025!

Dear Attendees,

Welcome to Future Materials 2025, the 6th International Conference on Materials Science & Nanotechnology to be held October 27-31, 2025, in Tenerife, Canary Islands, Spain and Online.

We are organizing an attractive program that will address the most current issues and challenges in Materials Science. The conference is designed to attract and stimulate scientists working in areas as diverse as chemistry, physics, biomedicine, and engineering. It is intended to be a forum to foster collaboration, exchange of ideas, and creativity. Moreover, we will pay special attention to young researchers who represent the future of science, reserving slots for their oral talks and rewarding their best presentations and posters.

As chair of the conference, I would like to express my special thanks to the scientific committee for their helpful advice and brilliant suggestions in organizing the technical program and for their thorough and timely review of the abstracts. Many thanks to the organizers for their dedicated efforts in overseeing the various aspects of the conference and coordinating related social activities.

Tenerife, in the enchanting Canary Islands, offers a unique and inspiring setting where nature and innovation come together. This stunning destination promises to captivate attendees and provide an unforgettable experience, both academically and culturally.

We look forward to seeing you all in Tenerife.
